Vendekin Technologies is an Indian technology company focused on transforming traditional vending machines into smart, connected, and cashless systems.

At its core, Vendekin combines IoT (Internet of Things), digital payments, and cloud-based analytics to modernize how vending machines operate. Instead of relying on cash and manual management, their solutions allow users to purchase products using QR codes and UPI, while operators can monitor machines remotely in real time.

The company offers retrofit devices that can upgrade existing vending machines, along with fully integrated smart machines. These systems provide features such as inventory tracking, sales analytics, remote control, and machine health monitoring. This helps businesses reduce operational inefficiencies, minimize losses, and make data-driven decisions.

Vendekin primarily serves businesses like offices, hospitals, educational institutions, and public spaces, where automated retail solutions can improve convenience and efficiency. Their business model typically combines hardware sales with software subscriptions and transaction-based revenue.

Overall, Vendekin aims to shift vending from a basic, cash-dependent setup to a smart, scalable, and data-driven retail solution, aligned with India's growing digital payment ecosystem.
